Our impact in Michigan starts with direct engagement in local communities:

JPMorgan Chase Invests in Detroit’s Economy

In 2019, JPMorgan announced its commitment to invest $200 million in Detroit’s economic recovery by the end of 2022. The new data-driven investment builds on the initial progress that helped boost the city’s recovery through the creation of sustainable loan programs for small businesses like the Entrepreneurs of Color Fund and increased access to affordable housing and job training. Morgan Stanley Provides Funding for Infrastructure Improvements at the University of Michigan

In 2017, Morgan Stanley helped the University of Michigan raise $465 million. The funding supported construction of the new Biological Sciences Building, athletic facilities, improvements in the central power plant, health centers, and research buildings. This expansion will allow the university to provide its students with the best tools to succeed in and out of the classroom. Learn more
